

The Value of the Cloth

Is less than half the cost of a Suit or Overcoat. It's the quality of the workmanship and trimmings that constitute the greater value. If you'll bear in mind this important fact, it will help you to invest safely and satisfactorily. It's the high-class workmanship, the artistic drafting of the garment, which gives that perfection of fit, graceful hang, general tone and lasting wearing quality that you'll find in our garments. It's the only kind you can buy of us; it's the only kind good enough for us to sell. The best is the cheapest. We sell the best at

RUSSELL WAS SEEN AT UNION STATION.

Mailed Letter to His Wife When Andrew Lane Met Him.

The friends and relatives of Luke B. Russoll, the young druggist who has been missing from his home, No. 127 Euclid aveday learned that he had been seen at Union Station Saturday night, but whether or not he boarded a train there has not yet been ascertained. In a farewell letter to his wife, Russell

Yesterday they called upon Andrew Lane, an acquaintance of Russell's. Lane said that he went to o crock. There he met Russell, who seemed rather nervous, and explained that he was waiting for his wife and child, who were to arrive in a short time. Russell carried a small grip. After meeting Lane's mather at the train, Russell excused himself, saying that he must meet his wife. As far as is known he was not again seen in St. Leuls, and it is supposed that he boarded a train for the South. Mrs. Russell attaches significance to the fact that the letter which she received from her husband was postimarked 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening, while, according to Lane's statement, Russell was seen an hour after the letter had been malled.

"I am more puzzled than ever," said Mrs. Russell yesterday. "In the absence of any there definite clew I must incitne to the united theory." IN THE TWO-MILLION CLASS.

I never knew bofore I received his letter that he Grank or gambled, but if he will only return or send me some word everything will be forgiven. This suspense is awful. He muct have been out of his head, either from drink or worry, when he wrote that letter. He had no reason to leave because of financial troubles, for he had ample backing, and I also have money. I am nearly heart-broken over the affair."

REMARRIAGE OF DIVORCED PERSONS.

Considered the Uppermost Question, for Final Adjustment, in the Episcopal Church.

DEAN DAVIS FOR PROHIBITION.

He Believes the Canon Should Be Made More Explicit-Judge John A. Harrison Would Make No Exceptions.

hat was appointed at the last general conention of the Episcopal Church, which was held in Washington in 1308, to consider the question of the revision of the canons of the church relating to the subject of the remarriage of persons who had been divorced, has created widespread discussion and is expected to prove the burning question for solution when the general convention meets in San Francisco on the first Wednesday of October next.

As the law of the church now stands, there is but one exception to the rule that divocced persons cannot marry during the life of either, and that is in the case of infidelity. At present the canon allows the cent person where divorce is granted on such ground to remarry in the lifetime of the other person. If the recommendation of the committee appointed by the last general convention to consider the matter is adopted by the next general convention, then remarriage of divorced persons will be inhibited altogether during the lifetime of cither of the parties to the divorce.

Dean Carroll M. Davis of the Diocese of Missouri, in discussing the question, said: "The canons of the church new prohibit the remarriage of divorced persons during the life of either, except upon the one well-known ground, where the tenecent party is allowed to remarry. This law is founded upon the Holy Scripture. All Episcopalians are agreed that this is strictly in accord with the Divine Inhibition, and should remain a most of the organic law. It is unantumber a most of the organic law. It is unantumber of the organic law. main a part of the organic law. It is unan-imously agreed that, so far as this excep-tion is concerned, there can be no remarringe in the church by the guilty party.
"There is another question on which there is unanimity, and that is that the present canon on the subject should be made more explicit. As it stands to-day, it is left to the discretion of the particular minister to the discretion of the particular minister to whom divorced persons may apply to be married as to whether they may or may not remarry. It is a well-known fact that many divorces are granted where the real cause is intidelity, though it never appears in the court record, because the parties, for the sake of children, family or other reason, consent to a decree on other court.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a horse blanket belonging to Mr. Charles Tucmlar of No. 235 Dickson street was stolen by two peddlers from his buggy, which he had left for a few moments at the corner of Seventeenth and Carr streets. Mr. Tuemiar pointed out the fugitives to the two officers, and the chase began. The peddlers had nearly a block start and whipped their horse into a gallop as soon as they perceived themselves to be pursued.

The officers ran after them down Seventeenth street to Franklin avenue, where the fugitives turned west, at the same time throwing out the blanket. This the officers picked up and continued their pursuit, gaining ground steadily. The peddlers pid no attention to orders to hait, and the officers were afraid to use their revolvers because of the crowded condition of the subject of the subject on matter upon the remarking of divorced persons should be proceeding the life of the other. THE Y. M. C. A. LAW SCHOOL. Judge Shepard Barclay Lectured for the Course. The Commercial Department of the Cantral Y. M. C. A. will open for the fall and winter next Wednesday evening and will continue until the first week in April, 1901. Judge Shepard Barclay, ex-Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Missouri, will be the lecturer for the entire session, which in-cludes an elementary and advanced course. Both will be given each Wednesday even-ing, the elementary from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

and the advanced from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m.

The elementary course will include locatures on the law of perent and child, master and servant, husband and wife, sales of personal property contracts, negotiable paper, commen carriers, agency, partnership and ballments. The advanced course will comprise lectures on wills and administration of estates, imakeners, conveyances of real estate, patents, copyrights, trademarks, guaranty and suretyship, liens, insurance and corporations.

At the close of the year examinations will be given, which will entitle the student to the consideration of the international Committee, whose credentials will admit the successful student to any one of the 168 colleges and universities of this country. Last year thirteen took the examination, and it is thought the graduating class will be much larger this year. A small additional fee to the membership fee will entitle members to the privileges of the commercial department.
